James Davis by way of amendment to the declaration made for the purpose of obtaining the benefit of the Act of Congress of the 7th June 1832 states that since writing & making his foregoing declaration he has thought much of the dates or periods at which he performed the respective tours of service and although yet some what uncertain as to times he states to the best of his recollection and belief the tours of duty mentioned in his declaration in which he was commanded to go as a guard for lead for the use of army & to extend the line between Virginia & North was in the latter part of 1779 & in the first part of the year 1780. He now well recollects that on both these occasions he was required to perform tours of military duty in the defence of the Country and was placed in the foregoing descriptions of service by order of the Commanding officers making a service directly connected with the military defence of the Country.

He now recollects that the tour of duty in which he was engaged in guarding the prisoners at the Moravian Town was in the year 1780. The service performed in guarding the General assembly he thinks was in the first of the fall of 1781.
