[Methodology: Spelling, punctuation and/or grammar have been corrected in some instances for ease of reading and to facilitate searches of the database. Where the meaning is not compromised by adhering to the spelling, punctuation or grammar, no change has been made. Corrections or additional notes have been inserted within brackets or footnotes. Blanks appearing in the transcripts reflect blanks in the original. A bracketed question mark indicates that the word or words preceding it represent(s) a guess by me. The word 'illegible' or 'indecipherable' appearing in brackets indicates that at the time I made the transcription, I was unable to decipher the word or phrase in question. Only materials pertinent to the military service of the veteran and to contemporary events have been transcribed. Affidavits that provide additional information on these events are included and genealogical information is abstracted, while standard, 'boilerplate' affidavits and attestations related solely to the application, and later nineteenth and twentieth century research requests for information have been omitted. I use speech recognition software to make all my transcriptions. Such software misinterprets my southern accent with unfortunate regularity and my poor proofreading skills fail to catch all misinterpretations. Also, dates or numbers which the software treats as numerals rather than words are not corrected: for example, the software transcribes "the eighth of June one thousand eighty six" as "the 8th of June 1786." Please call material errors or omissions to my attention.]

State of Va.; County of Monongalia: SS

On this 15th day of February in the year 1833, personally appeared before me George McNeely, a Justice of the peace in and for said county, Col. John Evans, a resident of said County, aged ninety four years, who being first duly sworn according to law, doth on his oath make the following declaration, in order to obtain the benefit of the Act of Congress passed 7th June, 1832.

That sometime in April or May, 1778, at the County aforesaid, he as Colonel Commandant of a regiment of Virginia Militia received orders from the Governor of Virginia to detail a certain number of men from his regiment to be joined by companies from other regiments and march to the west in an expedition for six months intended to act against the Indians under the command of General McIntosh [Lachlan McIntosh]. That a short time after he received orders from Genl. McIntosh to march his regiment to Montures bottom [Montour Bottom at present day Coraopolis Penn.] on the Ohio River below Pittsburgh, that as soon after as could be done, he gave the necessary notice and orders to all officers of the regiment at that day scattered over a district now forming a great many counties—that after the men were detailed, he rendezvoused them at the farm of Major Phillips now in Fayette County, Pennsylvania and from thence soon after marched in the direction to Montures bottom, where his regiment arrived on the tenth or eleventh of June, 1778—that he left his regiment before they reached the rendezvous and went to Fort Pitt in order to ascertain whether provisions had been sent to supply his men. He was there introduced to Genl. McIntosh by Col. John Gibson, who informed him that the day before supplies had been sent to Montures bottom by water that he then joined his regiment and soon received orders to proceed to Beaver creek about thirty miles below Fort Pitt near to which his troops assisted to build a large fort, named after the commanding officer that from Fort McIntosh, the army marched out to the Tuscarawas [River], a branch of the Muskingum River where we erected Fort Lawrence [Fort Laurens] the men carrying the logs—that some time after, the greater part of the army marched back to Fort McIntosh, here he discharged his regiment about the 20th or 21st of December, 1778. That his men suffered much in this campaign for provisions—that his own horse became so poor, that he had to walk the greater part of the way to his residence in this county—that companies of militia from the South Branch of Potomac, and from Ohio County were placed under his command, that his commission, orders, letters, payrolls, etc. were all destroyed by fire in the office of the County court of Monongalia in February, 1790, that he was a soldier under General Washington, whilst that great and good man was an officer and served under orders of Gov. Dunmore [John Murray, Lord Dunmore, last Royal Gov. of the colony of Virginia].

That he was born on the 7th of December, 1738 in Fairfax County, Virginia, that he does not know what has become of the record of his age—that he was removed from Fairfax to Loudon [Loudoun] County at the age of thirteen and in October of the year 1770 removed to the farm on which he now and has ever since resided—that he was appointed a clerk of this county about the year 1780 and continued to hold that office until he resigned in 1807. That he recollects Col. Boyer, who commanded a regiment from Botetourt—that the Eighth Pennsylvania Regiment he believes was commanded by Col. Gibson—that Major Springer was attached to his regiment that he was personally acquainted with most of the officers under the command of Genl. McIntosh, but has forgotten their names—that he believes there are yet living a number of persons in this part of the state by whom his services can be proved.

That he is now unable to read or write and is only able to distinguished day from night.

He hereby relinquishes every claim whatever to a pension or an annuity except the present and declares that his name is not on the pension roll of the agency of any State. Sworn and subscribed on the day and year aforesaid.
