State of Virginia, County of Spotsylvania to wit.

On this the 7th day of Sept'r 1832 personally appeared before the Honorable Justices of the Court Sup'r. Court of Law and Chancery for the County of Spotsylvania, in open Court sitting, Benjamin Alsop of the County of Spotsylvania in the State of Virginia aged seventy four years, who being first duly sworn, according to law, doth on his oath make the following declaration, in order to obtain the benefit of the provision made by the act of Congress passed June 7th 1832. That he enlisted in the Army of the United States about the 1st of October 1775 as a Minute man, with Captain Oliver Towles and served as a minute man until about the first of Dec'r. of the same year, when the Battalion, of which the company to which he belonged was a component part, was disbanded and in Jany 1776 he again enlisted with Captain Oliver Towles and served in the 6th Regiment of the Virginia line, under the following named officers: Colo. Mordecai Buckner, Lt Colo. Thomas Aylett [sic: Thomas Elliott], Major James Hendricks, Capt Oliver Towles 1st Lt. Nathaniel Fox 2nd Lieut Charles Tutt and Joseph Holliday Ensign. He states that when he enlisted in the Minute service, he was in the 17th year of his age, and was ordered with four other companies to an encampment for the purpose of receiving instruction in Camp duty he remained in camp some time upon the land of Gen'l Alex'r. Spotswood [Alexander Spotswood] in the County of Spotsylvania on the Rappahannock river, and shortly after that service, viz. in Jany 1776 as above stated, he enlisted for two years under Capt. Towles and aided with his recruiting. The company thus raised was passed[?] on the 29th of Jany by two magistrates (under the orders of Convention) and the company certificate obtained &c. The company was in a few days thereafter marched to Fredericksburg, from thence to Williamsburg, where he was appointed Sergeant, after remaining about three weeks in Williamsburg, he was marched to Hampton, where he was kept until the month of June; he was then marched back to Williamsburg, and there remained until the latter part of August, where he received marching orders for New York. All this time his company was attached to the 6th Reg't of the Virginia line under the Command of Colo Buckner, Lt Colo Aylett and Major Hendricks. The Regiment then marched for New York passing through Fred'g and crossed the Potomac at Nolands Ferry; he joined the army under the Command of Gen'l. Washington at Newark about nine miles from New York in the month of November, shortly after which [on 21 Nov 1776] the whole army commenced the retreat through New Jersey into Pennsylvania and encamped on the banks of the Delaware just above Trenton. On the morning of the 25th of December, a detachment of 200 men was sent across the Delaware (of which he was one) was sent across the Delaware for the purpose of reconnoitering about Trenton, and on his return he found the company crossing the river, where the detachment was ordered to join their respective companies. then about night fall He was then placed with the rest of his company in the advanced Guards and taken into the line of marched toward Trenton. About one half or three quarters of a mile from Trenton they fell in with the Hessian Pickett Guards at a place called the White house, and where they were fired upon, and returning the fire of the Hessians some time in[?]. The advanced guard was then under the command of Major Rich'd Parker [Richard Parker]. He then marched on to Trenton, where there was a general engagement in which the Americans were victorious. this took place early in the morning [26 Dec 1776]. after this engagement the whole army returned to their encampment on the Delaware carrying with them the Hessian prisoners taken at the engagement. After remaining in Camp a day or two, they were marched to Trenton [30 Dec], and there encamped for a few days. from Trenton they marched to a small village called Maidenhead, where they understood that the enemy was approaching. they then retreated to Trenton, and crossed the Bridge [at Assunpink Creek], the enemy following. The enemy encamped for the night in Trenton and the American Army in sight. About midnight the American Army having kindled Camp fires took up their encampment, and secretly and silently marched to Princeton leaving the enemy in possession of Trenton. He was in the engagement at Princeton [3 Jan 1777] and was immediately under the command of Gen'l Chas Scott [Charles Scott] of Virginia, who held the command of the Virginia line. He was afterwards at the battle of Brandywine [11 Sep 1777] in Gen'l Weedon's [George Weedon's] Brigade in Gen'l Green's [sic: Nathanael Greene's] Division, where he was struck with three balls, only one however wounding him, that in the left shoulder, whilst in the act of reloading his Musket. The blanket slung along to his back had 16 bullet holes through it. He also states that he was at the battle of Germantown [4 Oct 1777], but in consequence of his inability to bear arms by reason of his wound was not engaged in the engagement; he brought off Lt. Chas Tutt who was mortally wounded in that action. He further states that he was afterwards in Fort Mifflin [on Mud Island in Delaware River] during the whole siege which lasted about thirty-two days [10 Oct - 15 Nov 1777], and was one of the few who defended it to the last; The Fort was at first under the command of Colo. [Samuel] Smith of Baltimore, who receiving a severe wound, was compelled to resign the command to Colo. John Green of Va., Colo Green being disabled, the command devolved upon Colo Chas Simms [Charles Simms] of Alexandria [VA], and under him the men evacuated the fort in the dead of night. they crossed the river in Boats and went to a village called Woodbury, where they remained a short time, and then marched to Head Quarters. In the fall of 1777 he marched with Gen'l Washington to Valley Forge, and in Feby 1778 his time of enlistment having expired he was discharged by Gen'l Weedon, and came to Virginia, where owing to the death of his Father which took place during his absence, he was compelled to remain. But afterwards and in the year 1780. served in the Militia of Va. He states that he does not now recollect what has become of his discharge.

He hereby relinquishes every claim whatever to a pension or annuity except the present and he declares that his name is not on the pension roll of any agency in any State. Sworn to and subscribed the day and year first above mentioned.
