[Methodology: Spelling, punctuation and/or grammar have been corrected in some instances for ease of reading and to facilitate searches of the database. Where the meaning is not compromised by adhering to the spelling, punctuation or grammar, no change has been made. Corrections or additional notes have been inserted within brackets or footnotes. Blanks appearing in the transcripts reflect blanks in the original. A bracketed question mark indicates that the word or words preceding it represent(s) a guess by me. The word 'illegible' or 'indecipherable' appearing in brackets indicates that at the time I made the transcription, I was unable to decipher the word or phrase in question. Only materials pertinent to the military service of the veteran and to contemporary events have been transcribed. Affidavits that provide additional information on these events are included and genealogical information is abstracted, while standard, 'boilerplate' affidavits and attestations related solely to the application, and later nineteenth and twentieth century research requests for information have been omitted. I use speech recognition software to make all my transcriptions. Such software misinterprets my southern accent with unfortunate regularity and my poor proofreading skills fail to catch all misinterpretations. Also, dates or numbers which the software treats as numerals rather than words are not corrected: for example, the software transcribes "the eighth of June one thousand eighty six" as "the 8th of June 1786." Please call material errors or omissions to my attention.]

[p 23]

I was well acquainted with the late William Cammack during his life, when I became acquainted with him, which was about the year 1802, I was informed that he had been a soldier during the war of the Revolution and had been wounded in some of the battles fought to the southward, I think in the battle of Guilford Court House – Mr. Cammack was lame when I first knew him, and so continued ever afterwards. His lameness, as I always understood and believe, was caused by the wound he had received during the Revolutionary war; and on that account he had been pensioned by the Government of the United States.

Dear Sir

My brother William Cammack who was an invalid pensioner of the United States government died in 1824, having his pension due and owing him from March 1798. He left no widow or child, and I am his only heir. Can the pension due be paid to me as his only heir or must it be paid to the administrator of my brother. His estate is insolvent, and if it goes into the hands of the administrator, I shall never receive one cent of it. With this pension the subject to the debts of my brother. Be pleased to inform me upon the above subjects of inquiry.

Very respectfully
John Cammack

On Examination of the within mentioned Person – find a Ball has passed through the right knee, in consequence of which, a partial contraction is produced – the withering of the Limb is very considerable = he complains of weakness in the part, which 'tis very probable may be the case, & being of no trade must in some measure prevent his obtaining full support by hard labor.
